

Computer Jobs

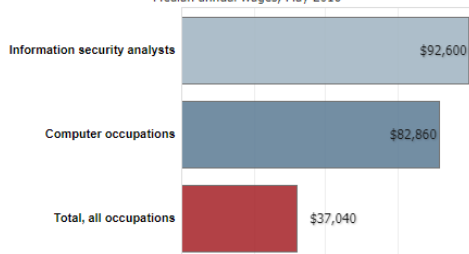

Information Security Analyst

Information security analysts plan and carry out security measures to protect an organization's computer networks and systems. Their responsibilities are continually expanding as the number of cyberattacks increases.

The median annual wage for information security analysts was $92,000 in May 2016.

Information Security Analysts
Median annual wages, May 2016

Database Administrators

Database administrators (DBAs) use specialized software to store and organize data, such as financial information and customer shipping records. They make sure that data are available to users and secure from unauthorized access.

The median annual wage for database administrators was $84,950 in May 2016.

Database Administrators
Median annual wages, May 2016

Computer Systems Analysts

Computer systems analysts, sometimes called systems architects, study an organization's current computer systems and procedures, and design solutions to help the organization operate more efficiently and effectively. They bring business and information technology (IT) together by understanding the needs and limitations of both.

The median annual wage for computer systems analysts was $87,220 in May 2016.

Computer Systems Analysts
Median annual wages, May 2016

